Academic Appointments

Proofs & Reasons — Computus Transcription Project Pittsburgh, PA
Principal Investigator Carnegie Mellon University

2026 – Present

Lead the computus corpus and HTR/stylometry initiative on mathematical imagination and calculational technique in medieval manuscript culture (proofsandreasons.io).

Proofs & Reasons Pittsburgh, PA
Researcher Carnegie Mellon University

May 2026 – Sep 2026

NLP and digital-humanities research on the long-timescale development of mathematical imagination and the ways calculational techniques hybridize with a broader spiritual and mystical imaginary.

Carnegie Mellon University Aug 2023 – Present
Lecturer – Writing and Communications Pittsburgh, PA

- Courses Taught: 76-106: Poetry for Programmers – novel course design that unites philosophy of computer science and poetics.
  76-101: Hunger: Interpretation and Argument – developing markdown files to aid student critical engagement with corporate AI tools.
  76-270: Writing for the Professions.
- Service: Member, Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Working Group.

Carnegie Mellon University, Department of English Oct 2026 – Dec 2026
Academic and Administrative Operations Advisor Pittsburgh, PA

- Graduate student recruitment: recruiting campaign, follow-up emails, and review of Dietrich College graduate applications.
- Refined graduate recruitment FAQs for public-facing consumption.
- Coordinated with staff and faculty on the PhD certificate launch.
- Collaborated with faculty on graduate student handbook reviews.
- RPT support for the department, working closely with the Department Head.
- Graduate student data review.
- Assessed departmental administrative structure governing academic affairs and current assignment of duties for academic administrative staff.
- Provided guidance on the need and structure of part-time adjunct appointments.

Carnegie Mellon University, Department of English Sep 2026 – Oct 2026
Graduate Advisor Pittsburgh, PA

- Additional temporary part-time special faculty appointment (Sep 1 – Oct 12, 2026; ∼10 hrs/week), alongside Lecturer appointment; reported to Christopher Warren, Head, Department of English.

- Graduate student recruitment: recruiting campaign, follow-up emails, and review of Dietrich College graduate applications.
- Developed graduate recruitment FAQs using AI-assisted tools.
- Coordinated with staff and faculty on the PhD certificate launch.
- Collaborated with faculty on graduate student handbook reviews.
- RPT support for the department, working closely with the Department Head.
- Graduate student data review.

Cornell University Aug 2022 – May 2023
Joseph F. Martino '53 Lecturer in Undergraduate Teaching Ithaca, NY

- Courses Taught: Erotic Ecologies I & II; Medieval Dreams and Modern Insomnia.

Cornell University Aug 2017 – Dec 2021
Instructor of Record Ithaca, NY

- Courses Taught: Writing and Community Engagement; American Voices; Games and Contests (Writing about Place/Motion); Collecting Evidence (Mystery Stories).
- Teaching Assistant: Medical Humanities (Spring 2019).
- Service: President, Medieval Studies Graduate Organization; Graduate Policy and Liaison Committee Member.

Saint Louis University Aug 2014 – May 2016
Instructor of Record St. Louis, MO

- Courses Taught: Advanced Strategies in Rhetoric and Research.
- Co-Founder: Text Mining Initiative, Walter J. Ong, S.J., Center for Digital Humanities.
- Service: EGSO Event Planner and Treasurer; EGSO Committee Member; Graduate Student Association Representative for English.

Education

Cornell University 2022
Ph.D., Medieval Literature Ithaca, NY

- Dissertation: "Rewrite this Book: Compilation and Experimental Literary Practices in Piers Plowman and Late Medieval English Book Culture"

M.A., Medieval Literature 2019

Saint Louis University St. Louis, MO
M.A., English 2016

- Thesis: "Double Vision: Piers Plowman and the Medieval Miscellany"

Hillsdale College Hillsdale, MI
B.A., Classics and English Literature 2012

Digital Humanities & Public Scholarship

Computus Transcription Project 2026 – Present
Proofs & Reasons — Computus Corpus Pittsburgh, PA

- Assembled a new corpus of ∼40 computus manuscripts (8th–12th c.), sourced via IIIF from e-codices, BnF, NYPL, and Wellcome, producing first-time diplomatic transcriptions of ∼4,500 pages to date.
- Built the supporting HTR + LLM-correction pipeline (Kraken HTR, ∼351,000-line training corpus, ∼3% character-error rate), funded by an NSF ACCESS allocation on PSC Bridges-2; ongoing stylometric clustering and rolling-fingerprint analysis.

Beatrice Institute — Collegiate Cultural Foundation Series AY 2026–27
Program Collaborator Pittsburgh, PA

- Co-proposed (with James DeMasi, Meredith McDonough Thornburgh, and Grant Martsolf) an eight-event undergraduate series (seven seminars + one lecture) on marriage, dating, mate selection, and sexual integrity; $20,000 CCF award without revision.
- Seminar leader: "Call Him Hither: Have We Ever Known How to Date?" (Wing to Wing, Oar to Oar; courtship, gender, and modern dating expectations).

Research Party 2025 – Present
Creator & Developer Pittsburgh, PA

- Designed and launched Research Party, a digital humanities platform dedicated to revealing social networks and bias in bibliographies.
- Offers the possibility for expansion of bibliographies after analysis is complete.

Digital Humanities Lab 2025 – Present
Co-Founder Pittsburgh, PA

- Establishing a working group for researchers in CMU's English department and beyond focused on practical digital and computational solutions to real research problems.

Computational Humanities Research Group Fall 2025 – Summer 2026
Founder, Department Coordinator Pittsburgh, PA

- Became a required graduate seminar for CMU's English department.
- Coordinating events for CMU's English department in coordination with the Posner Center and CMU Libraries to give local digital humanities researchers a public platform.

Issuing Citations 2025 – Present
Chair and Co-Founder Pittsburgh, PA

- Established and coordinated a meeting space for graduate students to present WIP to peers from other disciplines.

Glyph Machina 2023 – Present
Medievalist & Technical Liaison Remote

- Updated an .xml visual editor and wrote software to expand Latin abbreviations automatically.
- Transcribed manuscripts to .xml format and corrected transcriptions in VS Code.
- Authored approved SBIR Pre-application documents and internal technical documentation.

Public Works 2022 – 2023
Co-Founder Ithaca, NY

- Co-founded and maintained an interdisciplinary lecture series aimed at connecting academic speakers with public audiences. (`www.publicworks.info`).

Text Mining Initiative 2014 – 2016
Co-Founder St. Louis, MO

- Co-founded a digital humanities working group aimed at genre identification through distant reading practices.

Software & Tools

- historical-ocr (GitHub) — Self-contained orchestrator for computational-ready text from historical sources: print OCR (Tesseract), PDF/IIIF ingest, protocol YAML → TEI, and optional hooks to `transcription-shell` and `manuscript-fingerprint`. Now a contributing tool across several dissertation projects.
- strigil (GitHub) — Archival web scraper: high-quality PDFs, text, and images from digital-collection sources (NYPL Digital Collections, CONTENTdm, IIIF manifests, HathiTrust), stored locally with archival-quality image filtering and optional JS rendering (Playwright/Chromium) for dynamic pages.
- transcription-shell (GitHub) — Lineation → PageXML → LLM transcription following the Academic Handwriting Transcription Protocol; GUI and CLI with Glyph Machina, Kraken, or custom mask lineation; validated YAML output. Trained a Kraken HTR model on ∼351,000 annotated medieval-Latin lines (CREMMA, HTRomance) to a 3% character-error rate on held-out validation; cross-provider benchmark suite (Anthropic, Gemini, local Ollama) against ground truth; 125 commits.
- manuscript-fingerprint — Letter-height and book-level sizing tool for early English print (c. 1470–1700): Kraken line segmentation, height-ratio filtering ($\geq 0.55\times$ median line height), 14 distributional sizing channels (glyph height, ink area, aspect ratio, leading, . . .), then ResNet glyph-encoder matching to attribute imprints to physical type cases via Print & Probability.
- Research Party (research-party.com) — Bibliographic analysis platform: compile role and social maps, coverage, synthesis, and exploratory Q&A over a citation corpus; integrates `bib-ocr` PDF citation ingest.
- new-world-xml (`nwxml`) (GitHub) — Maintained visual Page XML / ALTO editor for ground truth on scanned documents; Electron desktop app, successor to visual-page-editor (itself based on nw-page-editor). Used in the Glyph Machina transcription workflow, including Latin abbreviation expansion (expand-diplomatic).
- reasoning-stylometry (GitHub) — R/`stylo` pipeline underpinning Proofs & Reasons: classifies mathematical reasoning style (spatial/visual vs. symbolic/derivational) independently from content (geometric vs. algebraic) across JAMS papers, via `stylo::classify` / `rolling.classify`, leave-one-out cross-validation, and Delta distance tables. Externally validated against 31 independently-authored, human-declared style labels.
- medieval-proof — Genre and authorship stylometry for medieval Latin: Burrows's Delta with rolling-entropy genre-shift detection across 13 genre classes, trained on ∼16,900 text chunks (Latin Library, Boethius, Bede, Chaucer, . . .); applied to whole-manuscript reports on NYPL and Wellcome computistical witnesses.

Consulting

Gilliam Writers Group 2022 – Present
Faculty New York, NY

- Consult with creative and academic writers to bring writing projects to completion and to market.
